PARIS CORRESPONDENCE OF LITTELL'S LIVING AGE, -(R. WALSH, ESQ.)

Parts, November 2, 1848.

As yet there are but three republican Governments (so called) in Europe-Switzerland, France, and Venice. Of rast sat near, on a sofa, in elegant toilette, simply nodding to 'cically, in commerce and currency, and that cause was the Practice, you can judge. The dictatorship has been renewed the groups as they entered, and wearing a very grave face same in France and England." Even the London Athein Venice; one of its first measures was a decree that all citimens possessing gold and silver utensils should deposite them in the mint to be melted into coin for the public treasury. Death the penalty. We entertained hopes that the Swiss would remain quiet and orderly; but radicalism has excited serious disturbances at Geneva, and the clerical, or ultra Catholic party attempted a revolution at Fribourg. The refractacy bishop was spirited away by the authorities, much in the manner that the late King of Prussia caused the prelate of Calogne to be carried off. Fribourg has been restored to order by the intervention of the troops of Berne and Vaud. The federal and national system can alone be the salvation of Switzerland; it is the only unity by which Germany can be most benevolent aspect. The two prelates and others of the first time, and delivered an irrefragable series of reasons against tranquillized and rendered prosperous.

We learn from the London papers that the insurrection against the British rule in the island of Ceylon has been crushed, though not without considerable effusion of native provided on former occasions. The Assembly had roundly cal solecism was apparent. But Gen. Cavaignac follower Shoot. The Dutch wage perpetual hostilities in some parts denied to the Speaker an addition of six thousand france per with an urgent remonstrance against delay, on the ground of of Java and the Eastern Archipelago generally. I am struck with an article of the London Times of the 30th October, section of Austria. Here is an instructive ex-

"It is clear that in this struggle no pretence of liberty or right remains to the party who have grossly abused the conberal concessions made in March and May, and the constitutional reforms already legally effected; but nothing can be more opposed to the establishment of any form of constituvernment than the destructive excesses which have marked the whole conduct of the revolutionary party in Austria. Those who had been most earnest in promoting the tardy progress of reform, and in restoring the ancient instituthe empire to greater activity and freedom, were the first to recoil from the vile passions and the anti-social delusions which had been spread amongst the people. By surprise, by violence, and by the cowardice or treachery of the tizens of Vienna, those revolutionary principles succeeded, at the instigation of the Hungarians, and under the protection of a portion of the Diet, in getting possession of the capital. From that moment it became the paramount duty of the Emperor's ministers and of the army to march upon Vienna, just as we saw in June last the national guards of the French departments flock to Paris, prepared to contest the triumph of the red republic. Anarchy may prevail in a city at times, when proper measures of police are viewed with excessive jealousy, and the middle classes themselves follow a wavering line of conduct. But the resources of such a rebellion are contemptible in the field and must yield to the pressure of ism, to which atheists, anarchists, libertines, and desperadoes military control. Such a war, therefore, cannot be protract- of every description, now cling as their engine of disorder, ed; but even if the resistance were infinitely greater, the alternative of civil war itself is preferable to a base and inanimate submission to the despotism of a sanguinary rabble and the summssion to the despotism of a sanguinary rabble and the preposterous demands of a people armed for the destruction of society itself. The extraordinary victories won in the spring toral anathems.
